Trip Overview

Indigenous People Trail is a classic route short and easy trek to escape the congestion of commercialized trekking routes and get 'off-the-beaten-track' to experience the real Nepal. The "Indigenous People \(IP\) Trail" or IP trail culture trek takes place in Ramechhap District, 130km east of Nepal's Capital, Kathmandu.

The first of its kind in Nepal, the IP Trail offers unique, living exposure to one of the most culturally diverse areas of Nepal combined with the beautiful natural landscape. Sailung Peak in the north and the golden Sun Koshi River flowing along the south mark the start/end point respectively of the IP Trail which offers a unique and natural combination of ethnic cultural diversity coupled with breathtaking Himalayan and mid-Hill Panoramas.

Newly open for trekking routes in Nepal, A culture trek par excellence, without a doubt one of the best trek in Nepal. this trek is possible throughout round the year, although, when you are travelling into spring season the Rhododendrons are in blooming. the trail has been given a name of 'Indigenous People Trail' (IP Trail) in honor of the six major ethnic settlements in the area.

The trekkers are welcomed into the culture and lifestyle of indigenous communities including Sherpa, Newar, Thami, Tamang, Yolmo and Majhis in this lively cultural route. The two major religions in Nepal – Hinduism and Buddhism are ever present in the form of gods and goddesses, temples, stupas, gumbas, monasteries and sacred caves.

Getting Indigenous People Trail

It is an easy trek. Starting from the trailhead at Dunge and walking downhill to Lubughat or start at Nepalthok and trekking uphill to Dunge via Sailung. Ramechhap-bound buses run daily from Ratna Park bus station in Kathmandu at 6.30am to Mude.

Buses ply the five-hour return trip to Kathmandu via Nepalthok from the other river bend in Lubughat. Hiring a guide is helpful and necessary. No need to book accommodation as homestays are provided by the villagers along the way.
