Personal Porter Services for Your Trek

Make your trekking in the Himalayas easier and more enjoyable with the help of our Personal Porter Services. A dedicated personal porter for you at just $20 per trekking day, which will carry a maximum of 25 kg of your gear shared between two clients so that you can concentrate on the scenery and enjoy the thrill of trekking rather than struggling with a heavy backpack.

Benefits of Personal Porter

- A personal porter will carry your heavy gear so you can enjoy the trek with your family and make sure the kids are as comfortable as possible.
- Porters can help out children by carrying their essentials so that parents are able to concentrate on helping and guiding their children during the trek.
- With all of your equipment taken care of, you can save your energy to make it up that tough trail and really enjoy the experience with your family. Experienced porters know the country well and can act as guides, making travel safer for families on rugged trails.

Scenic Flights: Kathmandu to Pokhara

You can choose a 35 minutes flight from Kathmandu to Pokhara instead of taking a ride on a tourist bus for 7 -9 hours. The flight option provides great views of the Himalayas. You can take flights easily to minimize time as it operates multiple times-a-day options. The one-way ticket price is around USD 125 per person.

Convenient Return Option

If you choose a return flight from Pokhara to Kathmandu, it will give you maximum trekking time, and you will not have to sit in a long driving bus during the journey. This option makes for hassle-free travel before your next leg and is geared for people going to catch another flight upon their back.

Essential Information For Mini Annapurna Trekking

Before the mini Annapurna trek to Ghandruk, it is necessary to be fully prepared. This is all the key information to help you plan your trip more effectively. If you would like more information as to what to pack, how hard the hike is or important safety tips, please click on the refer to the below guide that explains everything about the trek, including trek meals, accommodation, etc.

Annapurna Trek Weather, Climate, and Best Time

At different altitudes, the Annapurna region has varying climatic conditions. Although it is possible to do the trek throughout the year, we would suggest avoiding the monsoon season (June - August) since there is heavy rainfall and slippery trails. Spring (March to May) and autumn (September through November) are the best trekking seasons.

Rhododendrons bloom along the trail and in temperate temperatures, which alter the character of spring quite differently. In the mountainous autumn, trekking days of clear skies and beautiful great mountains appear. Comfortable weather, too.

The area of the Ghandruk is still accessible, and the trek is also suitable in winter months (December to February), which turns cool. Before going travelling, you should normally check the forecast and what the weather will be like during the trip you are about to make.

Accommodations

The guest houses on this mini Annapurna trek are small, basic, and authentic at the same time. These are usually run by local families' houses where you could chat with locals around. Rooms are fairly clean and comfortable with basic only twin beds with clean linens and shared bathrooms. The guest houses themselves are probably few and far between, but more likely, you'll find guest houses with communal dining areas in which trekkers can sit and eat together. And hot showers are probably available for an extra charge.

This trek will take you through and out of the Annapurna range; you will be camping for staying in the standard hotel accommodation for 2 nights in Pokhara, the beautiful lakeside city with a stunning view of the Annapurna range, before and after. Accommodation here is mostly will include private bathrooms, WiFi, and breakfast included usually.

Meals Facility (All Meals During the Annapurna Mini Trek)

All meals are provided for trekkers on the Mini Annapurna Trek, keeping us nicely fed and energized for our trek. Porridge, eggs, toast and other local delicacies are what come up for breakfast, which sets you through for the day. The trail teahouses offer a taste of dal bhat (rice and lentils), noodles, vegetable curries or other common choices that are usually served during lunch. The guesthouses feature some international options but mostly traditional Nepali foods. Meals pokhara except for breakfast are not included so you are free to eat in local restaurants and try different cuisines. When the trek is completed there is a fantastic farewell dinner at a typical Nepali restaurant in Kathmandu to celebrate this achievement and another chance to think back on your journey with friends.

Transportation Facility Included

The Mini Annapurna Trek experience is enhanced by smooth transportation of Kathmandu, Pokhara and the trekking route, from Kathmandu to Pokhara scenic drive of 6 to 8 hours. This is an overland journey in a comfortable tourist coach, ensuring you have good views of the stunning landscapes of Nepal, including terraced fields, rivers and villages.

The transportation return from Pokhara to Kathmandu, as well as from where we started the trek on, is also included after the completion of the trek. Also, there are all the airport arrival and departure transfers organized so that you will be picked up and dropped off at the airport without any fuss. A comprehensive transportation facility means you needn't worry about logistics and can focus on the adventure. The coaches are comfortable with amenities to make this journey comfortable.

Annapurna Trek Packing List (Suitable for Trekking with Kids)

It is important to pack in the right way - especially when trekking with children. Here's a recommended list:

- Moisture-wicking base layers
- Mid layers (up to fleece, down jacket)
- Outer layers such as waterproof and windproof
- Comfortable trekking pants
- Warm hats and gloves
- Sun hats and sunglasses
- Broken in sturdy hiking boots
- More extra pairs of socks and undergarments

Gear:

- Child-sized backpack meant to disperse the weight properly
- Plus, added stability trekking poles
- Seasonal sleeping bags
- Rigid, hard plastic water bottles and water purification tablets
- Extra batteries for the headlamps

Miscellaneous:
